THE OFFICIAL NEWSLETTER FOR GUIDE DOGS SA/NT SPRING 2016

Message from Kate

The year is flying by - and in eight short months, thanks to your support, the team at Guide Dogs has already achieved so much.

As I listen to the team excitedly describing the achievements of our clients and reporting on results, I never fail to reflect on your part in this process.

Without your support, the team could not achieve what they do. Without you, our volunteers, we could not care for and train our dogs. Without your donations, hundreds of South Australians and Territorians would still be trapped at home, isolated and alone.

Thank you. I am so grateful for your support.

You'll find this newsletter a little different to previous editions. In the past a separate newsletter has been produced for SA (Paw Prints) and NT (The Guide) supporters. Production and distribution of two newsletters is costly. As a result, the newsletter, which reports back on the wonderful achievements made possible by you, can only be distributed to a small number of supporters.

It is important that your investment is directed first and foremost to our clients through services. I know you understand and value this decision. However, I also want to communicate the important work that is only possible with your support. And, it is important that I share our collective successes with as many of you as possible.

So, after a budget review, we have made a few changes.

- 1) Only one newsletter will be produced, with information tailored to SA and NT;
- 2) The length of the newsletter has increased which means I can share more information with you; and
- 3) The circulation has increased meaning more of you will receive updates about the outcomes made possible by you.

Making more use of digital campaigns also means a lower cost, opening up more funds for the new and improved Paw Prints newsletter.

I've so enjoyed reading through the wonderful stories in this new edition. It is a joy to check in on young Riley and his Autism Assistance Dog, Blake. We report back on the overwhelming support for Alisha and our search for her perfect dog. Plus, you'll meet four of Guide Dogs' trusted volunteers.

I hope you enjoy reading your new and improved newsletter. Please let me know your thoughts – I'd love to hear from you.

Meet your team

Sensory Services SA

Find out more about the faces behind the Guide Dogs name; how you help them support the community and the best parts of the job.

Who are the faces within the Sensory Team?

We are a team of eight Case Managers (in photo from L to R) Vanessa, Justin, Tanysha, Yasmine, Mayanthi, Anne, Lilbel, Karyn and Simon. Each of the team has a tertiary qualification in social work, disability studies, psychology or counselling/ psychotherapy.

What is the overall role of the Sensory team?

Our role is to support individuals who have a vision or hearing loss and complex needs, to develop independence and involvement within their community. We provide services to assist with independent living, including case management, information and referrals, support plans, advocacy and practical assistance. We also support families and carers and provide community development and education. In addition, we run a variety of support groups for clients and their carers.

What is the best part of the job within the Sensory team?

Our case management is often long term and we love to see the outcomes that our clients achieve along the way. Achieving their goals can be life changing and is so rewarding and inspiring for us to witness.

What do you love about working at Guide Dogs?

The Guide Dogs staff members are amazing – dedicated, knowledgeable and great to work with. It is wonderful to be part of an organisation continually recognised as Australia's Most Trusted Charity. Everyone at Guide Dogs has their own positive story about why they are here which creates a great culture. And, getting to meet the puppies is of course a huge bonus!

What is something that supporters may not already know about the Sensory team?

That we are here! Perhaps because of our organisation name, a lot of people don't realise that we are 'more than dogs'. We take a holistic view - for us, it's not just about hearing or vision, it's about helping people in the best way we can with the variety of needs they have. We work across all ages and aspects of a person's life for as long as the need is there. The team also run support groups. These assist in providing an opportunity for people to participate in the community and improve skills, as well as providing support to the carers of people living with disability.

The SA Sensory Services team.

How does the Sensory team fit into the rest of the organisation?

We often work with the same clients as other services. For example, someone receiving assistance with advocacy or a support group may also have a Guide Dog or work with an Occupational Therapist (OT).

We are in constant consultation with other teams to provide the best possible service for our client. This may mean having a piece of equipment prescribed by an OT or getting help applying for a grant.

Describe the Sensory team in a nutshell.....

We are a close, supportive team who are passionate about helping people living with disability to achieve their goals and aspirations and lead the life that they want.

If you or someone you know would benefit from the services provided by the Sensory Team, please call (08) 8203 8333 or email yoursupport@guidedogs.org.au.

A tribute to Malcolm and Rosemary Penn

Just one generous family whose efforts helped make Guide Dogs what it is today.

Our beautiful head office in Morphett Street is the result of many years of hard work by generous supporters like you. As part of its construction we have honoured some of the people whose efforts helped make Guide Dogs what it is today.

One of our special rooms is named after the late Mr Malcolm Penn, a long-time supporter as a donor, Life Member and advocate.

In a special interview, we spoke to Malcolm's wife, Rosemary, about her husband's dedication to Guide Dogs, as well as her own.

Please tell us a little about your husband and how he lost his sight.

Malcolm lost his sight as a child. He and his parents lived at a settlement on the Indian Pacific railway line, just over the WA border, as Malcolm's father was a Fetter (worker) on the line. Families along the line would get together at the weekend to socialise and during one of these gatherings; an accident caused Malcolm to lose the sight in one eye. Due to the distance from medical assistance, Malcolm experienced a condition called Sympathetic Ophthalmia and tragically lost sight in both eyes. Malcolm spent many months in the Adelaide Children's Hospital while his mother found various jobs in order to support them.

How did you meet Malcolm?

I was a '£10 pom' when in 1966 I came here from the UK to visit my cousin. I'd planned to visit for two years then return home. Malcolm had completed his Law degree at Adelaide University and was doing some further external study. A team of readers was, at the time, assisting Malcolm by reading his textbooks to him as he finished his studies. One of these readers was my cousin's husband, Ron, and I would assist by reading to Malcolm when Ron was not available. We were married in 1969 and had two sons during our 39 year marriage.

How did Malcolm form his strong connection to Guide Dogs?

Malcolm became involved with Guide Dogs through his membership with Apex. He was given his first Guide Dog in the late 60s and eventually had four wonderful Guide Dogs over 40 years.

In 1983, the University Radio Station set up an hour long Radio Reading Service for the Print Handicapped. The service aired every lunch time from a little house at Mile End, run by a small army of volunteers.

When the service became unviable for the University, Malcolm brought together several South Australian organisations assisting vision impaired people, and suggested that they should be supporting such a service. As a result of this meeting, Guide Dogs offered assistance and 5RPH moved into the Guide Dogs building in Morphett Street, until they moved to their current home, again at Mile End.

Malcolm was responsible for several other significant advances for vision-impaired and disabled people in South Australia. Could you tell us about them?

As a lawyer, Malcolm was passionate about rights for the vision impaired. He worked with Don Dunstan to draft the legislation that today allows access rights to Guide Dogs in South Australia. It was a big step forward and something I am very proud of.

He didn't stop there though. Malcolm had other ideas about helping people living with disability. He worked to establish the Sir Charles Bright Scholarship in 1985. Sir Charles Bright was a former judge of the Supreme Court who did a lot of work in both his public and private life for the disabled and disadvantaged.

You're still a big advocate for the vision impaired also, Rosemary – what volunteer work do you do now?

I'm a Life Member of Guide Dogs and proud to be a supporter. I'm also still involved with 5RPH 1197 – it's been 33 years now. Once a week with my 'foodie' colleague, I present a cooking program with various guests and items of interest from the 'Source SA' section of the Advertiser. I also present a Hymn Program on a Sunday evening.

Malcolm carried the Olympic Torch through his community in the lead up to the 2000 Sydney Olympic Games, with Guide Dog, Vinty.

The Malcolm Penn room is home to a range of toys to help engage children with autism.

Rosemary Penn visits the Puppy Development Centre to meet Texas.

The Malcolm Penn Room was named in 2010.

Sir Charles Bright Scholarship

Scholarships are awarded to disabled persons undertaking post-secondary education at University, TAFE or other recognised post-secondary educational institutions. Scholarships of $1,500 are presented annually in February/March. The scholarship has assisted students to the tune of $360,000. One of our own staff members, Simon Wong was awarded the scholarship in 1987 while studying at Flinders University. For more information click here.

The Malcolm Penn room

The Malcolm Penn room, which is used for our Autism Assistance Dog (AAD) program, was named for Malcolm in 2010 to recognise his innovative spirit. At the time, the AAD program was very new and innovative in Australia. It seemed an appropriate way to honour an innovator such as Malcolm.

Our Guide Dog Services team uses this room to work with families of children living with autism. The team meet with parents to explain the AAD program and undertake distraction training with dogs and children. It's also a safe place to introduce children to dogs.

Changing lives

Alisha's waiting game will have a perfect ending

We recently wrote to tell you about Alisha's story of challenge and hope.

You might also have watched her story via video. It was so very heartbreaking.

Since the age of nine, Alisha has been battling adversity. This was when her first brain tumour was discovered. It was found to be benign and Alisha recovered.

But 10 years later, at the age of 19, came a tragic blow. Alisha discovered that her mum's birth family had a history of brain tumours. A pre-cautionary check-up MRI revealed new tumours on the nerves used for balance leading to her inner ears. She was diagnosed with Neurofibromatosis type 2 (NF2), an incurable condition.

Now, Alisha has vision and hearing difficulties and problems with balance. Even her vocal cords have been affected.

With the complexities of her condition, Alisha became isolated – until she found Guide Dogs, and her life changed forever.

Your outpouring of support and messages of love in response to this campaign were so generous – thank you. It means so much to Alisha, and to us.

"I am overwhelmed by the response to my story," said Alisha. "I don't consider myself that special; I just get on with my life, because this is the way it is. But hearing the messages from donors was a surprise.

"I think the best thing is how much people want me to have a dog. People who made a donation said they think that I deserve to have more freedom and independence. I want this too – quite desperately."

Every donation, no matter the amount, from generous supporters like you, brings freedom and independence one step closer for people like Alisha.

"But I also know that I need a very special dog. Belynda has told me that my dog is out there. Guide Dogs just have to keep looking and testing and training."

"Every dog in our program is special and each one is different. We are now looking out for the right dog for Alisha," said Belynda, Guide Dog Mobility Instructor.

"For example, we must look at the pace of a dog. We have many vision impaired clients who love to stride out and enjoy a fast pace so a dog with a quick pace is perfect. But this is not what we need for Alisha.

"The chosen dog must be compatible with Alisha's pace and also sense her need for balance. The dog may need to stop frequently when Alisha needs to regain her balance and she may even need to lean against the dog for a short period while she regains her balance.

"The dog must be very calm and compliant, have good focus with a sound temperament. It will require a good level of voice responsiveness. Alisha may not always be able to use physical cues as much as voice cues so the dog will need to tune in to her voice. We're also looking for high willingness – to love, please and perform for Alisha, building a strong attachment."

Your support is vital in finding the right dog for Alisha. Thank you so much for your generosity. Guide Dogs will be right by Alisha's side, supporting her as she waits – and we'll make sure you are one of the first to know when we call to say 'we've found your perfect match'.

Have you been following Alisha's progress through our appeal and online? Alisha would love to hear from you.

Use the enclosed postcard to send your note of support back to Guide Dogs and we'll be sure to pass it onto Alisha.

Help us provide safety, independence and inclusion. Please click here to donate online or call (08) 8115 6060.

"If I had a Guide Dog,
I could do things that appear so simple to sighted people, like walking upstairs without tripping and falling or walking in a shadowed area." Alisha

We can't wait to tell Alisha that you've helped find her perfect match.

Alisha loves her independence but it is limited.

A Guide Dog will create safety for Alisha.

Without a Guide Dog, Alisha has become isolated.

Alisha knows she needs a very special dog.

With Belynda's guidance,
Alisha and Xane went on an experiential walk to gauge her requirements.

Where are they now?

New life and new hope, thanks to a wonderful dog - and you.

Seven years ago, we met Riley. Diagnosed with severe autism, five-year-old Riley was non-communicative and unpredictable.

Leaving the house was a major challenge for his family. A simple walk to the park or the shops was out of the question.

“We would have to strap Riley into his stroller or hold him. We had to be 100 per cent aware at all times of what he was doing, for fear that he would bolt away into danger,” said Riley’s mum, Nicole.

Riley had also just started school. “When he realised he had to go every day, he just wouldn’t go. It was taking me an hour to coax him to leave the house,” she said.

“He was also extremely afraid of dogs. The idea of an Autism Assistance Dog (AAD) seemed out of the question – I couldn’t imagine how it would work. I was in despair for my little boy, and my family.

“But then we met the Guide Dogs team. They were just amazing. We were on the AAD pilot program – one of the very first matches. I was afraid and excited, all at once.

“They gently and skilfully introduced Riley to the wonderful Blake – and overnight, life changed for the better.”

Nicole says the change she has seen over the years from a non-communicative, shy, afraid little boy, to a settled, happy young man is phenomenal.

The difference after Blake arrived was extraordinary. Riley would happily connect to Blake, walk calmly next to him and play with him. He started saying a few words and his social skills improved.

“Riley became calm and content around Blake. I clearly remember the day I looked out the window and saw them playing in the yard and Riley was laughing like mad. It was so wonderful. I had never seen anything like it before.

“I remember the first time I decided to use Blake to help us get Riley out the door to school. I connected him and we ‘went for a walk’, without protest. My husband met us down the road with the car; we got in and went to school. We never had a problem again,” she said.

“Most importantly, there was no more fear. We could leave the house without any stress or fear of danger. It was such a relief to know he was safe, and that life was actually going to get better,” says Nicole.

Over the years, Riley’s relationship with Blake, his social skills and his personality have blossomed.

Nicole feels so much more relaxed and confident these days. Originally, her biggest concern was Riley’s safety. But over the years, he developed such a special connection with Blake that he understood that he needed to stay with him and did not run away. It was an understanding that didn’t really exist between him and his parents.

“For several years he was totally reliant upon Blake. Now, when we are in a safe environment like the nearby park, Riley is somewhat self-sufficient when walking. He is obviously bigger now so he isn’t ‘attached’ to Blake to stop him from running away. However, their close bond means that Riley is more confident and knows to stay beside Blake which in a way gives him a little more independence.”

Riley still only says a few words, but is very good at taking direction. He’s a young man of 12 now and his life is very different. He loves playing Minecraft on his iPad; he loves swimming, riding his scooter and his bike. He goes to school every day, is doing well with his letters and numbers and loves to sing! He likes to help in his Grandpa’s workshop and Nicole hopes that one day he’ll be able to participate in hands-on work like this.

Life is just normal now. Nicole and her family cannot imagine what life would be like today without the gift of Blake.

“Being matched with an Autism Assistance Dog was the first step in changing not only Riley’s life, but our whole family’s life.”

These are the stories we love to tell. Riley’s life has changed forever and it was made possible through your donations and your support. Thank you.

This joy should be available to all families living with autism.

Families who are trapped at home, isolated and living in fear. Diagnosis of autism is increasing and there are so many more children who need your help. An Autism Assistance Dog, just like Blake, is life changing.

Will you please continue your generous support so more families can live a life without fear?

Please note - The Autism Assistance Dog program is currently only offered in South Australia.

Please consider a donation to the Guide Dog program today. Your generosity will provide safety and comfort for a young person, just like Riley.

Blake and Riley, aged seven.

Riley is now too big to be attached to Blake but their strong bond means he is confident to walk Blake when supervised and in a safe environment.

Best friends, Riley and Blake, share a special connection.

Trapped in his own world, Riley is always comforted with Blake by his side.

"Riley became calm and content around Blake. I clearly remember the day I looked out the window and saw them playing in the yard and Riley was laughing like mad. It was so wonderful. I had never seen anything like it before." Nicole

Behind the scenes

A day in the life of a dog-in-training

Get a dogs-eye-view of how your support plays an invaluable part in the development of a Guide Dog's life.

From the day a new litter is born in our Puppy Development Centre, to the day he or she graduates, your role as a Puppy Sponsor, donor or volunteer is essential. In fact, it's your support that changes lives.

And, rain, hail or shine our Guide Dog Services team work hard to turn our beautiful puppies into a Guide Dog, Autism Assistance Dog or Pets As Therapy Dog.

Along with Guide Dog Mobility Instructor, Belynda, Guide Dog-in-training, Pez, explains his typical day.

“Woof! Hi, my name is Pez. I am one of eight from the P Litter, born in 2014 and am now coming to the end of my formal training. I've been focusing on destination walks with my trainer, Belynda. Belynda and I practice various routes over and over so I can learn them by heart and become comfortable with the distractions I might see while working.

The other day, we practised going from a quiet residential area to a busy train station and through the city to the Guide Dogs office. It was so much fun!

Doing it over and over again consolidates my learning and gives me confidence so I have a smooth transition from my training to become a working Guide Dog.

We started in a nice quiet street near a park. It was raining and miserable but I don't mind...this is my job, rain hail or shine! I wear a harness and a gentle leader, which helps me focus on my work. It can also help my handler moderate my walking speed.

We crossed streets and navigated around bus stops and sign posts, taking special notice of low hanging branches. I didn't see the first couple of branches so we tried it a few more times and I became better and better at it.

I learned to find the cross-walk button for my handler to cross safely. When the train arrived I guided Belynda safely on board.

It's my job to find an empty seat so I went for one right near the door. I went straight up and lay my chin on it so Belynda could find it easily and then I lay down and tucked my paws in so no one would step on them!

When we arrived, Belynda gave me the command to guide her safely onto the platform and out of the station. Walking through a crowded station was tough! I navigated the crowd and steps like a pro though!

Having made it safely to the Guide Dogs office I got lots of praise and pats for doing such a good job. I can't wait to be matched, meet my new handler and become his or her eyes. Belynda tells me that I am going to change someone's life! I can't wait!”

Aren't I a handsome fella!

Waiting patiently for the train.

Guiding Belynda safely onto the train.

Mustn't forget to tuck my paws in!

Out and about

Hearing Services in the community

As a valued supporter you probably know that while our name is 'Guide Dogs', we are more than dogs.

The Guide Dogs team provide a comprehensive range of services in addition to training and placing our extraordinary dogs. Below are just a few of these services:

- Mobility training
- Case Management for people with sensory and hearing loss
- Empowering young people living with disability
- Counselling
- Working with My Aged Care.

Hearing Services provide assistance and support to any adult who has a hearing impairment or who has both a vision and hearing loss. They can also educate family members and other interested people about hearing loss, the effects, and services available in the community, and at Guide Dogs.

Our team of qualified, professional and experienced staff members design individual programs for adults with hearing loss to suit their lifestyle and goals.

"One of the most rewarding aspects of our work is being able to get out into the community and share our knowledge and expertise," said Helen Whitworth, Audiometrist and Principal Hearing Rehabilitation Coordinator.

The Hearing Services team make regular visits to Port Augusta, Riverland, the Iron Triangle and Mount Gambier as well as Fleurieu Peninsula, Gawler and the Barossa, Murray Bridge and Adelaide Hills.

These visits are planned to meet defined needs in the community.

In August 2015 our Hearing Services team received a grant which enabled them to visit Port Augusta and the Wami Kata Old Folks Home. This was extremely valuable as it enabled Guide Dogs to work personally with residents and staff at the centre, discovering specific needs in the local community.

"In particular, there are a high number of people with significant hearing loss in Aboriginal communities. Our team wanted to see if there were any services we could offer to help with," she said.

On their trip, the team arranged personal appointments and demonstrations of equipment such as TV devices, phones, personal communication devices and smoke alarms. They reached out to members of the community in their own homes who were less mobile and presented to several key community groups.

"It was wonderful to have such a positive response from the community. Our service is all about education. We work with people to establish what they may have at home, what they need and demonstrate how new technology and devices can enhance their lifestyle.

Guide Dogs volunteers

The life blood of our organisation

At Guide Dogs, we simply could not operate without volunteers. Their value to our organisation is priceless.

Carol has been volunteering with Guide Dogs for the past four years. As a short-term boarder and admin volunteer, Carol loves every minute.

"I have been a Puppy Sponsor for many years and always had my own dogs. But when the time comes to say goodbye to my own, I find it so hard. As a volunteer, I get to love and care for dogs all the time – and I don't have to say goodbye forever!" said Carol.

"As an admin volunteer, there's always something different to do. I make phone calls to thank new donors, update the database or work on reception. I also send out receipts and clean the collection dogs.

"As a short-term boarder, my husband and I have just hosted our 29th dog! We help to socialise the dogs, take them for walks and go to the shops, restaurants or the movies. We need to maintain consistency with training rules, but when their coat comes off they are not working anymore and they can play. My favourite part of being a home boarder is watching the dog enjoy life.

"Everyone wants the dogs to succeed and I think it is very important that we all do the right thing to give them the best possible chance. It is special to see them transition into a working dog and know that they are changing someone's life.

"If you are thinking about volunteering, there is something to suit everyone. It is so rewarding; the staff and other volunteers are lovely. This country would fall apart without volunteers!"

Volunteering is a family affair for Carol. Her husband Graham has recently started as a bus driver for our new community bus.

Breaking down isolation is critical.

Empowering people to connect with their community is vital, whether through providing independence through a Guide Dog or mobility training, or making personal visits to people who need our services.

To help extend our reach into the community, Guide Dogs have introduced a community bus, thanks to a grant from the Department of Communities and Social Inclusion. Among other things, the bus helps to break down isolation by taking clients on social visits. Graham recently drove the first group to visit TAFE Salisbury to learn Auslan.

"I have seen how much enjoyment Carol gains from her volunteer work with Guide Dogs and decided to join in, too!" said Graham.

We're so grateful to Carol, Graham and all of you who volunteer. Without you, Guide Dogs could not provide safety, independence and inclusion to the community. Thank you.

With Urban by her side, Carol calls people like you to say 'thank you'.

Graham takes a group on the first bus trip.

Community

The Early Years at Seymour's egg-cellent effort.

It's so special to see a community come together to make a difference. That's exactly what The Early Years at Seymour College community did back in April.

Three-year-old Fletcher is a student of The Early Years at Seymour. He has Optic Nerve Hypoplasia which means he has underdeveloped optic nerves.

Fletcher is too young to yet fully communicate what he can and can't see. Orientation and Mobility Instructor, Melissa Holland, has been working with Fletcher for the past seven months to assist him with his mobility and understand what he can and can't see.

Fletcher doesn't see obstacles that are near to the floor which means he bumps into things or trip on stairs. For someone with a vision loss as young as Fletcher, an inquisitive nature can be fraught with danger and uncertainty. Beginning at his pre-school brought a new environment with potential new hazards.

Melissa and Fletcher work together one day a week at school, supported by his educators, to develop skills aimed at helping Fletcher compensate for his vision loss.

Fletcher's educators pose with Tango.

Fletcher and Kellie have a special cuddle with Ambassador Tango.

Richard and Tango gratefully accept Seymour's generous donation.

"From when we started at The Early Years at Seymour, we felt welcomed and part of a progressive team willing to help in any way. This was something as a family we had not previously encountered at day-care centres - Fletcher always fell in the 'too hard basket'. His educators have been exceptional in supporting Fletcher by their willingness to learn from Melissa", said Kellie, Fletcher's Mum.

Inspired by the work of Melissa and Fletcher, the community of The Early Years at Seymour College donated this year's Easter raffle proceeds to Guide Dogs, so that more people like Fletcher can benefit from services like Orientation and Mobility.

Donations of chocolate eggs and Easter themed gifts made up 17 baskets which were then raffled within the community.

Thanks to the generosity of The Early Years at Seymour, Guide Dogs were gifted with $820 toward enhancing the life of people like Fletcher who live with vision impairment.

To show our thanks, Guide Dogs sent along Richard and Ambassador Tango to meet Fletcher's class, who were lucky enough to have a pat once Tango's working jacket came off.

Thank you to everyone at The Early Years at Seymour College who got involved with the raffle. Your generosity makes it possible for Guide Dogs to provide safety, independence and inclusion to people living with vision and/or hearing loss.

Guide Dogs Events

Thank you for supPAWting our events!

Thanks to you, our events continue to attract a PAWsome turnout!

It began earlier this year when volunteers, clients, staff and supporters proudly paraded as one for International Guide Dog Day in April.

In one of the biggest parades, the celebration stopped traffic, office workers and shoppers as it wound its way through the city to Government House.

The sea of orange t-shirts and balloons even attracted attention from high-rise office buildings with their occupants smiling and waving at the 300 strong parade.

Chief Executive, Kate Thiele, said it was an amazing symbol of how everyone comes together to help change the lives of people living with disability.

The parade was again led by the SA Police Band – who couldn't resist the tune Talk to the Animals. Also Taking the Lead was our Patron, the Governor of South Australia, His Excellency, The Honourable Hieu Van Le and Mrs Le along with Guide Dog Xane.

At Government House graduating dog teams were welcomed and retired dogs were honoured for their work. A variety of businesses were nominated to receive special recognition of their commitment to providing access to assistance dogs. It was a pleasure to praise these businesses for going above and beyond.

The day was also complemented by our biggest 'Badge Day' so far in Rundle Mall with volunteers taking to the streets with our iconic Collection Dogs. Thanks to the public's generosity, we raised over $4,000!

Following this success, you helped us to reach a record result for the annual Quiz Night!

Yet another sell out for our Quiz Night, the crowd contributed to raising more than $26,000 to supawt people living with disability.

Footy Legend and Triple M radio personality Andrew 'Jars' Jarman pumped up the crowd as MC for the night. You see, we have a special connection with Jars. Andrew and his family are volunteers for Guide Dogs and look after adorable brood mother, Polo as well as recently also becoming Puppy Raisers to gorgeous little Ruby.

As always, the fun night had a serious purpose as a fundraiser for Guide Dogs. Marie Ryan, alongside her Guide Dog Ebony, was interviewed by Jars and shared her touching story of just how Guide Dogs has enabled her.

A big thank you to our generous sponsors, Longview Wines, RACV Salary Solutions and Copyworld who helped make our Quiz Night possible. Also, to everyone who got their smarts on and dug deep on the night. Last but certainly not least, thanks to all the businesses and individuals who donated goods for our wine wall, silent auction and prizes.

Rundle Mall badge day raises over $4,000!

Taking the Lead with our Patron, Governor Van Le.

Best friends fur-ever.
